

Between Mugello and Valdisevie a land to discover

Dicomano, situated in the land of Tuscany, at the confluence of the torrent Comano and the river Sieve, where the Mugello valley ends and the Valdisevie begins, is a small town surrounded by the green Appennines and located in the middle of a landscape almost unaltered and without industrial plants, far away from the noisy traffic of main roads. Its origins date back to the Roman period when the Romans conquered the whole area inhabited by the Etruscans. From that period and the following centuries the area still preserves important remains: the archaeological excavations of the Etruscan site in Frascole, the Romanesque parish church of S. Maria, the beautiful oratory of S. Onofrio, masterpiece of neoclassicism in Tuscany.

Azienda agricola "Frascole"

Our farm covers an area of about 100 hectares, partly located on the valley floor where we grow peaches and plums, partly on the hill where we cultivate vineyards and olive groves.

The birth of our farm is due to the passion for agriculture, which has been handed on from generation to generation in our family. Recently, the various properties were joined and enlarged until the present size.

The farm centre is the holding Vico, where we produce the "Frascole" Chianti wine Rufina DOCG, besides vinsanto and extra virgin olive oil. Vico is located on the hill of Frascole (at about 400 m height), which dominates the town Dicomano and is an important archaeological area of the Etruscan period.

It is constituted by a small complex of buildings dating back to the Middle Age and surrounded by vineyards (covering about 15 ha) and olive groves.

Some years ago we started, with great painstaking and sacrifice, changing over our production in order to increase the quality of our products and to use in the best way the great natural capacity offered by our land; as regards the vineyards this has meant a strong cut in yields due to the adoption of thinning and compact growing forms, the turfing practice to reduce erosion and the great care of all the other tilling activities; as regards the wine cellar we look carefully after wine fermentation and its mellowing and aging period in wooden barrels and in bottles.

All this was possible thanks to the employment of modern cultivation and enological practices, being respectful at the same time of the traditional values.

Our products represent our best visiting card to invite everyone who wants to taste them in the marvellous hill setting of our land full of history. Come and visit us for a relaxing day-trip or for a longer holiday to spend on our farm, you are always welcome.
